Computhink Launches New Corporate Website

Lombard, IL, July 24, 2008 – In early July, after several weeks of technical overhaul, Computhink, Inc. launched a new corporate Website to meet the ever-changing standards of the Internet and the Document Management / Content Management industry. The new Website was designed with a modern Web look that brings a dramatic improvement in appearance, content, and functionality.

The new Website offers areas that relate specifically to the industry solution of choice, which provides users information and direct examples of case studies within any industry. It reflects Computhink's leadership among Document Management and Email Archival Solutions, and will continually be updated with industry-specific Webinars, white papers, press releases, case studies, and more.

"The Internet, and more specifically our Website, is our window to the world," said John Stelmach, President/CEO of Computhink. "We want people who land on our homepage to get a clear and concise understanding of who we are and the many benefits that our ViewWise product line offers. By upgrading our Website and our image on the Web, we believe users will understand us even more."

The new Computhink Website offers an easily accessible site layout, information about the entire industry and products, the ability to register online for a demonstration, and much more. For more information and to see the brand new Website, please visit www.computhink.com.
